

Selecting In-Home Care

TIPS TO ELIMINATE HIDDEN RISKS

Unlike many other in-home care providers, LIFETIME Care at Home is insured and liable should our caregiver experience an injury while in your home. Here are four things the team recommends when considering whom to hire for your in-home care:

1

GET A CERTIFIED AIDE.

While many in-home care organizations do not require aides to be certified, LIFETIME Care at Home does.

2

PAY FOR SERVICES, NOT FOR TAXES.

If you hire a private aide or placement agency, you are responsible – as the employer – for more than you might realize, including both state and federal taxes.

3

AVOID PERSONAL LEGAL LIABILITY.

According to the Department of Labor Statistics, the injury rate for home health aides is higher than for coal miners – and an uninsured aide will likely sue you for damages.

4

HAVE A POOL OF CAREGIVERS.

If you hire a caregiver on your own that ends up not being a “good fit,” you have to go through the entire search process again. For after hours or emergency situations, you also risk not having available caregivers when using a smaller team.
